

NMI HEALTH PRIVACY POLICY

At Nano Mask, Inc., (NMI), the confidentiality of personal information on Web site users is a top priority. The following statement describes the measures taken by NMI to ensure that your privacy is not infringed as a result of our collection and use of such personal information. It will allow you to better understand when, how and why this information is collected. As this document will occasionally be updated, we recommend that you consult it regularly.

Collection and use of personal Information

To receive information or one or more of our publications or newsletters, you must complete the appropriate forms, which include contact information that will make it possible for us to send you the requested documents or contact you in the event of a problem. Please note that we only collect the information you agree to provide us. Moreover, you can choose to end a subscription or customized service at any time. NMI will not use personal information for any purposes other than those described in this statement without having obtained your express consent. Furthermore, this information will not be available to any other entity or person other than NMI. NMI will obtain your consent before making any changes to the present privacy statement that would result in sharing or further use of your personal information. You may also, at any time, ask NMI to not make use of or to cease use of your personal information. NMI reserves the right, however, to disclose information on the users of its site in the following circumstances: to adhere to the provisions of a law or regulation, to ensure its defense in the event of legal action, or to protect its rights or those of site users.

Use of Cookies

At present, the NMI Web site does not use any cookies. Cookies essentially consist of information on web site users that servers transmit to browsers when web sites are viewed. This information can then be recovered at the time of subsequent visits. The information recorded can include items such as the date and hour a Web site was viewed, a reply to an online questionnaire, personal information collected by the server, etc. Cookies can in fact be useful, given that they save information concerning your preferences. Use of cookies is widespread, with most servers and browsers accepting them by default. To check all the cookies generated, simply look on your hard drive, where these are saved. You can, if you prefer, choose to disable this function on your system.

Hyperlinks

The NMI Web site includes hyperlinks to other Web sites that are not controlled by NMI or any of its subsidiaries. These links are provided for your convenience, and should not be construed to mean that NMI in any way endorses these sites. NMI is not responsible for information other than that contained on its own site or those of its subsidiaries, and cannot guarantee the accuracy of this information. This privacy statement does not apply to these other sites. We recommend that you read the privacy statement of any site where you will be providing personal information; in order to understand how the information collected will be used.
